

CSWB Community Collaboration Model (CCM)

Achieving the vision and outcomes of the CSWB Strategy is not the work of just one organization.

Community voice, partnership and participation is critical for success.

To bring collaboration to life, we need mechanisms to bring various partners to the table, build on what is already happening, and identify ways to address challenges

CCM OVERVIEW

The CCM has multiple spaces that recognize different interests and focus areas, from system level change through to program delivery

The CCM will reflect CSWB's core principle of being community driven and City-convened

Systems Challenges & Conditions Space

In this Space we will amplify efforts that are shifting the conditions that perpetuate safety and wellbeing challenges and inequities in Edmonton.

Get involved in this space if you:

- Lead multi-sectoral and/or issue based collaborations
- Are willing to leverage your knowledge, networks and resources for collective efforts
- Want to share and embed perspectives from lived experience into systemic efforts
- Want to help visualize and make sense of a complex ecosystem
- Want to help create theories of change and frame priorities for collective effort

Secretariat

Model Guidance Group

Composed of individuals interested in governance and providing advice on the operation of the CCM and its spaces

City Project Team

The City will provide administrative, reporting, information coordination, hosting/convening, evaluatory and communications support

Discovery & Development Space

In this Space we will focus on learning that leads to action, problem solving and continuous improvement. A priority will be gathering, sharing and mobilizing assets, lived experience and community knowledge.

Get involved in this space if you:

- Are interested in sharing perspectives and information from your experience or project/service work
- Want a platform for creative problem-solving or prototyping
- Are willing to lead sessions on program design or topics of interest
- Want to learn from those with lived experience
- Want to resource or fund prototypes or service design activities
- Want to learn more about the CSWB Strategy

The CCM exists within a diverse ecosystem involving many different types of programs, partnerships and services

RELATIONSHIPS AND PARTNERSHIP APPROACH

The CCM will require different individuals and groups getting involved and also the establishment of different types of partnerships.

Collaborating requires time and relationship-building; collaboration will advance at the speed of trust

Network Partners

Our Network Partners are individuals and organizations who participate in mutual information-sharing and discovery activities that are relevant to their interests.

We also rely on our network partners for advice and sense-making of Edmonton's safety and wellbeing ecosystem.

Collaborative Partners

Our Collaborative Partners are contributing time, effort and resources to CSWB funded projects and initiatives. They may also be hosting or leading discovery and development activities.

Strategic Partners

Our Strategic Partners are leading multi-sectoral efforts aimed at system and structural challenges. They are utilizing a range of levers and activities over a longer period of time to address CSWB issues.
